What did we learn?

- ❖ Students want more opportunities to engage in sports, recreational activities, and after-school clubs.
- ❖ Students feel like they can be honest with trusted adults in the school to talk to about their feelings.

- ❖ Teachers and staff agree students need support with reading, math, science, and social studies.
- ❖ Social, emotional, and behavioral support, as well as access to community resources.

- ❖ Opportunities for families to participate more in their students education.
- ❖ Support for food and clothing insecurities
- ❖ English language instruction for students and families.

Priorities and Opportunities

Rigorous,
Community-Connected
Classroom Instruction and Expanded, Enriched
Learning Opportunities

James Ryder Randall Community School plans to continue and expand both in-school and after-school programs to support students academically, socially, emotionally, and behaviorally. It will also seek opportunities to combine funding sources to offer more field trips and academic enrichment experiences. Additionally, community school funds will be used to purchase materials for programming and provide student incentives.

Collaborative Leadership,
Shared Power, and Voice

Identify and leverage students, families, and community members who would like to actively participate in leadership and volunteer opportunities within the school. Focus efforts on including input from stakeholders to make informed decisions. Involve parents, students and teachers in shaping school initiatives regarding students' achievement.

Integrated Systems of Support

James Ryder Randall Community School will explore ways to utilize community school funds to create additional student and family supports by collaborating with external agencies. It will also work to build and strengthen partnerships with local organizations to expand access to mental and behavioral health services, education, and resources for the entire school community.

Culture of Belonging,
Safety, and Care

Using community school funds, the school plans to expand professional development opportunities for staff to continue to improve school climate and culture. Additionally, a portion of the funding will support programs aimed at fostering a positive and supportive school environment.

Powerful Student and Family Engagement

James Ryder Randall Community School recognizes the value of student and family engagement and is committed to maintaining a welcoming environment that strengthens partnerships between families and the school. Efforts will focus on identifying and removing barriers to participation, with the goal of improving academic achievement and student attendance. The school will also provide a Family Resource Center that is a dedicated space to support families with access to
